In a time where digital news is often cluttered with noise and misinformation, Desh Crux is standing out by focusing on what truly matters: reliable, unbiased, and relevant news. Founded by Pradum Shukla, an Indian entrepreneur from Varanasi, Desh Crux is quickly becoming a trusted platform for those who want real stories without the drama.

A Fresh Approach to News in India

What sets Desh Crux apart is its clear focus on authentic journalism. While many news outlets chase viral headlines, Desh Crux puts its energy into facts, context, and clarity. From current affairs and politics to business, tech, and social issues, the platform covers a wide range of topics that affect people's lives directly.

Pradum Shukla started Desh Crux with a simple idea: to give people access to news they can trust. That idea has grown into a platform that is not only informative but also easy to engage with—thanks to its clean interface and strong presence on social media.

The Story Behind the Founder

Pradum Shukla, born on June 24, 2006, in Varanasi, Uttar Pradesh, is not your typical startup founder. With a background rooted in content creation and technology, he saw the gap between what people need and what mainstream media often delivers. Instead of waiting for someone else to fix it, he took action and launched Desh Crux.

His vision was clear from day one: create a space where facts matter, voices are heard, and readers come first. And that's exactly what Desh Crux is becoming—a news platform made for the people, not just clicks.

Looking Ahead

As Desh Crux continues to grow, so does its impact. The platform is attracting readers from across India who are tired of biased reporting and looking for something smarter, simpler, and more honest. With Pradum's leadership and a clear focus on quality, Desh Crux is on its way to becoming a go-to source for news in the digital age.
