Addressing Storage Challenges in Cardiac Medications

Nicorandil is widely prescribed for the treatment of chronic stable angina. Due to its sensitivity to temperature and humidity, its storage has traditionally required stringent cold-chain logistics. This requirement often poses significant challenges, especially in rural and semi-urban areas where maintaining cold-chain infrastructure is difficult.

Enhancing Affordability and Accessibility

Medkarts room-temperature stable Nicorandil tablets are manufactured under WHO-GMP-certified facilities, ensuring high-quality standards. By eliminating the need for refrigeration, the company significantly reduces distribution costs, allowing the medication to be priced up to 80% lower than its branded counterparts.

“Our room-stable Nicorandil is more than a product-it’s an answer to India’s cold chain problem in heart care,” said Ankur Agarwal, Co-founder of Medkart. “Were proving that innovation doesnt have to be expensive-it has to be relevant.”

Dr Ramesh Mehta, a senior cardiologist based in Ahmedabad, added, “Ensuring that a cardiac drug like Nicorandil remains effective without refrigeration is a major step forward, particularly for patients in remote regions. We’ve long seen efficacy compromised due to storage issues. This advancement will save lives and improve treatment consistency.”

Tackling the Cardiovascular Disease Burden

Cardiovascular diseases (CVDs) are a leading cause of mortality in India. According to the Global Burden of Disease Study, heart disease is the leading cause of death among women in India, accounting for almost 18% of all female deaths. Medkart’s launch addresses both cost and accessibility in one formulation.
