OKAYA Infocom Private Limited has officially announced its corporate name change to VERITASOURCE Private Limited, marking a significant milestone in the company's growth journey and reinforcing its commitment to innovation, digital transformation, and future-ready business solutions.

The name change has been approved by the Ministry of Corporate Affairs (MCA), Government of India, and reflects the company's evolving business vision while continuing to operate with the same legal entity, management, values, and commitment to its stakeholders.

As VERITASOURCE Private Limited, the company will continue to strengthen its presence across its existing business domains while exploring new opportunities driven by technology, innovation, and customer-centric solutions. The new identity represents the company's long-term vision of building trusted, value-driven businesses for customers, partners, and stakeholders.

Speaking on the announcement, Vivek Khanna, CEO & Executive Director, said, "Our transition from OKAYA Infocom Private Limited to VERITASOURCE Private Limited marks the beginning of an exciting new chapter. While our name has changed, our commitment to excellence, integrity, innovation, and customer satisfaction remains stronger than ever. This new identity reflects our future aspirations while preserving the legacy and trust we have built over the years."

The company clarified that this is only a change in the corporate name, and there is no change in the company's legal status, ownership, operations, contractual obligations, or business relationships. All existing agreements, commitments, and services will continue uninterrupted.

Customers, business partners, vendors, financial institutions, and other stakeholders are requested to update their records to reflect the company's new name: VERITASOURCE Private Limited

The company will gradually implement the new corporate identity across all communication channels, digital platforms, branding materials, and official documentation.
